Happy Earth Day!

Last week on April 22, we celebrated Earth Day. Earth Day is an annual celebration that honors the achievements of the environmental movement and raises awareness of the need to protect Earth's natural resources for future generations. One of the beauties of propane is it's an environmentally friendly energy solution that's affordable, reliable, and versatile. It's a true fuel for our future!

It's time to complete the annual retail sales survey! The grant funds available to Louisiana PERC come from the annual sales report. Your participation in the Annual Sales Report is essential to the Louisiana Propane Gas Foundation. Your reporting directly influences funding for state programs available such as appliance rebates, consumer messaging campaigns, training, and more. Report directly on PERC's website before May 15th at propane.com/salesreport. Only one person in your company is a dedicated reporter. If you don't have access to the reporting or need to change who is responsible for reporting, please send an email to salesreport@propane.com.

Don't forget to register for our annual summer convention! We have provided the registration brochure in the last pages of this newsletter. It can also be found on our website at <https://lapropane.org/2024/03/22/2024-apga-lpga-summer-convention-registration-now-open/>. As a reminder, the dates are June 24-26 at the Hilton Hotel in Pensacola Beach, FL. The room block closes on May 22 so don't delay in booking your room! Also, please consider donating to the silent auction which benefits both states' scholarship funds. Anything and everything are welcome. No donation is too small. We appreciate your generosity!

If you have any questions, contact the LPGA office at 225-763-8922.

Thanks to Miss Louisiana Makenzie Scroggs for joining the Louisiana Propane Dealers this past weekend at the Zurich Classic of New Orleans. The LA Propane Dealers are proud sponsors of Miss Louisiana and the Zurich Classic!

CETP Transitioning to PEP: What You Need to Know

Starting in 2025, the Certified Employee Training Program (CETP) will begin to be phased out and replaced by the new PERC Education Program (PEP). This transition helps us move away from a one-size-fits-all approach to training and puts more focus on the necessary skills that are needed to safely perform specific jobs so employees get the information they truly need.

PEP will still include all of the key information and training from CETP, but will break it down into smaller, module-based learning paths that can be customized to meet your company's specific needs.

PEP will provide many benefits for employees, including:

- Focused, timely training
- Higher course completion rates
- Increased learner retention
- The ability to customize training using additional programs and electives and request the National Propane Gas Association or NPGA group rate. The room block will be available until Thursday, May 9th, or until the block is sold out.

An agenda will follow soon. We look forward to seeing you in June! If you have any questions, contact Rhett Johnson, NPGA's Senior Manager of Legislative Affairs at rjohnson@npga.org.

If you are able to join our great state of Louisiana in DC, please contact Randy Hayden at randy@ccilouisiana.com to be included in the Louisiana congressional meeting schedule.

PERC Education Program

Frequently Asked Questions

Starting in 2025, the PERC Education Program (PEP) will begin to replace the Certified Employee Training Program (CETP). Here are answers to some of the most common questions about the transition and the new program.

When does the transition to PEP take place?

Starting in 2025, CETP certifications that have been replaced with equivalent PEP content will begin to be archived, and not available for industry use. PEP will be replacing CETP and provides learners with added benefits. PERC is focused on bringing world class education and safety programs to the propane industry. With our designation as an accredited provider by the International Accreditors for Continuing Education and Training (IACET), and our new modular and function based training, we'll continue to be able to do that.

Why the change from CETP?

In 2019 the Council recognized the need to restructure propane industry training. The goal was to move away from a one-size-fits-all approach to a more customizable focused, updated, and shorter training program for industry employees. The PERC safety team, with direction from the Council and working group, have spent the last few years creating The Learning Center and started converting CETP into smaller, interactive training modules.

What is IACET?

The designation indicates PERC has completed a rigorous audit and evaluation of its courses, policies and processes against the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) Standard, which is internationally recognized by companies, state agencies, regulatory boards, colleges, and universities. This ensures all training and educational materials deliver the best possible instruction to propane industry employees. IACET accreditation also authorizes PERC to issue continuing education units (CEUs) for online and instructor led training that meet the IACET standard. The content will be available to propane and allied industry professionals through The Learning Center.

What are the benefits of accreditation?

The key benefits for propane marketers are the assurance that all training provided is of the best possible quality and is instructionally sound. It also has the additional benefit of being approved by a third party, to ensure it meets rigorous standards for excellence.

What are the key differences between PEP and CETP?

PERC has taken the key learnings from CETP and broken it down in smaller, module-based learning paths. With PEP, employees only need to complete the training modules necessary to safely perform their specific job. The focus on smaller modules of instruction has the dual benefit of increasing knowledge retention and higher course completion rates. These learning paths can be customized to meet a company's or employee's needs. Additional programs and electives are also available. Because employees are focused on what they need to know, when they need to know it, we can speed up the process from initial hiring to putting people to work in the propane industry.

How is training tracked?

There is no change in tracking from CETP to PEP. The transcript lists everything the learner has taken, including any CETP programs they have successfully completed. Training records will still be maintained in The Learning Center transcripts.

Does the new PEP still provide certification?

No. Learners will not be required to take an assessment exam and complete a skills evaluation. With PEP, learners will be tested at the conclusion of each module they take. As each module is successfully completed, it will be documented and added to the learner's online transcript.

Why can't PERC still offer an optional exam and skills packet that aligns with the new training content and call it CETP so it can continue to be used in certain States requiring it?

With the modularization of the content and building of learning paths that include several programs and modules, some of the programs and/or modules are meant to be optional. This gives people options to structure their training in a way that meets their needs to educate their employees on the job tasks they want them to perform. If an exam was created based on a learning path, it would need to be all inclusive of that specific path. A learner would need to complete all the training within the path to be better prepared for an exam. This forces people to study and learn content on job tasks they may never need, other than to pass the exam. Each module has a quiz within it that tests the learners knowledge of the training content.

What is replacing the Skills Assessments?

PERC also has On-the-job training materials for marketers to use to complete hands-on skills training with employees. The On-the-job training worksheets can be uploaded to The Learning Center and documented in the learners' transcript.

How do I conduct in-person training without the CETP workbooks and instructional materials?

Instructor-Led Training Toolkits are available for every program PERC develops. The toolkit consists of PowerPoint presentations with instructor notes and learner workbooks in PDF format for each module in the program. Student books will no longer be printed. The learner workbooks are available in PDF format and can be used electronically on tablets or printed. The end of module quizzes can be printed or instructors have the option of assigning the quiz to learners in The Learning Center.

What are the benefits of becoming a PEP-Recognized Instructor?

By completing PERC's Train-the-Trainer course, instructors will be able to issue CEUs, they'll ensure their training meets a verifiable standard, and they'll be able to customize training while still meeting learning objectives.

I want to continue to conduct in-person training, but I don't care about granting CEUs. Do I need to go through PERC's Train-the-Trainer session?

No, you do not need to be a PEP-Recognized Instructor to deliver the instructor-led content.

What if my state requires CETP certification?

PERC will work with State Associations in those states to assist in educating the State licensing authorities on what we are replacing CETP certification programs with and explain the accreditation program through IACET.

What about marketers who want to continue CETP?

Starting in 2025, CETP programs with equivalent PEP content will be archived and unavailable for industry use. PEP will fully replace CETP. PERC is focused on bringing world class education and safety programs to the propane industry, and with the IACET designation and our new modular and function based training, we'll continue to be able to do that.

What happens to my CETP certification once PERC stops offering it?

All CETP certifications will remain on your transcript in The Learning Center.

How can I attend a Train-the-Trainer session to become a PEP-Recognized Instructor?

Sign up at propane.com to be informed of upcoming PERC training sessions. You can also opt in to receive the Safety Matters and Training Tuesday newsletters.

A Hybrid Heat Pump Solution, Powered by Propane

Recent innovations in propane home heating equipment offer new opportunities to showcase the benefits of propane to homebuilders and homeowners alike.

HVAC contractors too often settle on installing new or replacement electric-only heat pumps. But those heat pumps historically struggle to keep up in cold temperatures. They depend on electric resistance heat that boosts electric demand by three to four times – and still fails to keep residents consistently warm throughout the house.

Recent advances in technology present an opportunity to capitalize on that deficiency, deliver improved comfort, and increase the likelihood for HVAC companies to recommend propane for the upgrade.

“Hydronic heat pump solutions, like the Heat Pump Helper™, feature hybrid technology to bring the comfort of propane to newly installed or pre-existing heat pumps,” says Bryan Cordill, director of residential business development for the Propane Education & Research Council (PERC).

“Pairing a hydronic heat pump with a propane storage tank, tankless water heater or even a boiler is an innovation that provides solutions for builders and homeowners.”

Here’s how it works:

When the existing thermostat calls for heat, it engages a circulating pump that starts the flow of hot water through a hydronic heating coil that is mounted on the air handler. The air gets heated as the blower moves the air through existing ductwork to heat the home.

Water continues to circulate through the water heater and the hydronic heating coil as long as there is a call for heat. Water also flows to domestic hot water fixtures like the sink or the shower, on demand.

“One gas line. One vent. Doing the job of two appliances. Now your propane water heater paired with a hydronic heat pump provides both hot water and space heating to your home,” Cordill says. “The result is improved efficiency, lower operating costs, and greater comfort.”

The Heat Pump Helper™ is available today with more propane-powered hybrid heat pump solutions coming to market in 2024.

Get the latest information at propane.com/hybridheatpumpsolution.

Benefits of Hybrid Heating Systems

COMFORT - Hybrid heat pump solutions deliver fast and consistent comfort, warming a home without relying on scorched, dry air from electric heat strips.

AFFORDABILITY - Compared to all-electric systems, hybrid heat pump solutions reduce operating costs by 35%.

EFFICIENCY - Hybrid heat pump solutions are energy efficient, requiring less amperage while still improving heating performance.

FLEXIBILITY - For homeowners considering future additions of solar- or wind-generated power, a hybrid heat pump solution can make installation more cost-effective due to the reduced electrical peak and running loads.

Propane Industry Promotional Special

PERC, in partnership with Bindus Manufacturing, is seeking industry support to promote the Heat Pump Helper™ by encouraging propane industry members to purchase the product and provide feedback on its performance.

Bindus is offering propane industry employees special pricing of $1,575 plus certified installation training on the unit. Many states are offering additional rebates for industry members who install a unit in their home in exchange for feedback on user and installation experience.

If you are interested in trying The Heat Pump Helper™, please complete the interest form at the link below. Please note that completing this form does not guarantee a reservation or approval for the purchase of a unit. Applications will be made available as reservation slots are opened.
